

TRAIN STUDENTS TO WORK BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN

TORONTO — An Eastern Rite Catholic college, which is preparing "intellectual commando chiefs for future 'peace corps' work behind the Iron Curtain," opened a campaign for $1 million here.

Administered by the Basilian Order, St. Basil's College has an enrollment of 200 Canadian and U. S. students and hopes to have 450 within two years.

Father J. E. Branch, campaign organizer, said the college is principally for boys of Slavic backgrounds, although youths of every national and ethnic group are accepted.

The priest said the aims of the college include training youth leaders who will "combat Communist infiltration among Canadian and U. S. Slav groups."

Father Branch said ethnic groups, especially those of Slav origin, are the targets of "global Communism," which woos children with free courses in Communist universities and sends them back to work against the free world.

"St. Basil's hopes to prepare young men who will carry the truth back to the lands of their forefathers," he said.
